

East Marlborough Township
Open Space, Recreation, and Environmental Resources Plan

Final Plan Edits as of 1/11/2021

Page	Edit/Change
Various, throughout document	All references to “the Township” replaced with “East Marlborough Township.”
Various, throughout document	Adjusted formatting to prevent last line of paragraph falling on next page, where possible.
Various, throughout document	Changed date of plan from 2020 to 2021.
Table of Contents	Changed Chapter 6 page number to start on 145 rather than 146.
p. 14	Changed “youths” to “youth.”
p. 18	Months added to top of Figure 1-1 chart.
p. 21	Added names of Sections referenced in Zoning Ordinance and Subdivision and Land Development Ordinance.
p. 21	Final line describing map on following page moved to end of last paragraph.
p. 30	Map depicting Unprotected Priority Farms replaced to improve resolution of image.
p. 31	Map depicting Conservation Corridors replaced to improve resolution of image.
p. 36	Updated text with the following: “The Battle of the Brandywine was a critical military engagement of the American Revolution that took place on September 11, 1777. The action (and events leading up to the day of battle) occurred right here, spanning approximately 35,000 acres over portions of both Chester and Delaware counties, as well as New Castle County. In 2013, the Brandywine Battlefield Preservation Plan was released (which stemmed from a recommendation in the 2010 Battlefield Study) as a way to work to preserve and raise awareness about the battlefield’s historic buildings and open space landscapes. The plan was completed as a regional planning effort, in cooperation with Brandywine Battlefield Task Force and in working with the 15 battlefield municipalities. The 2013 plan recommended consideration of battle-related local planning, land conservation, historic resource protection, and heritage interpretation efforts (such as signage). The plan also identified battlefield strategic landscapes, which comprised important battle events, open lands, and historic buildings, but were in need of further evaluation for directed local planning. Due to the battlefield’s very large size, strategic landscapes were divided into phases for specific study. In 2015, four strategic landscapes in the Northern Brandywine Battlefield were studied, which is where tactical battle staging occurred during the morning and into the afternoon the day of battle. In 2020, four strategic landscapes in the Southern Brandywine Battlefield were studied, which is where troop movements and strategy in the days leading up to battle occurred, including the Crown Forces approach into PA via

	New Garden and Kennett Townships and encampment around Kennett Square, and troop locations and battle events starting at dawn the day of battle occurred, including Crown Force and American positions and skirmishes in East Marlborough, Kennett, and Pennsbury Townships. Northern Battlefield and Southern Battlefield Strategic Landscapes Plans were created discuss battle-era historic resources and landscapes still evident today, 243 years after the battle, as well as preservation strategies, potential land conservation areas, and public heritage interpretation ideas that could connect residents with battle events and resources.”
p. 79	Updated text to read as follows: “3.8 Consider the preservation and interpretation of historic resources and lands located within the Brandywine Battlefield Study area and Battlefield Strategic Landscapes Plans.”
p. 79	Moved header at bottom of page to top of page 80.
p. 82	Replaced “Kennett Borough” with “Kennett Square Borough.”
p. 93	Replaced “impervious materiality” with “impervious material.”
p.98	General Trail Guidelines revised to reference the Multimodal Handbook by the Chester County Planning Commission.
p. 130	Replaced “picnic Figures” with “picnic tables.”
p. 147	Updated text to read as follows: “3.8 Consider the preservation and interpretation of historic resources and lands located within the Brandywine Battlefield Study area and Battlefield Strategic Landscapes Plans.”