

SPARROW TRAIL (0.7 MILES)

A pleasant, easy walk circling a meadow of native plants and grasses. In the fall and winter months, this meadow hosts a variety of sparrow species, making it a great site for bird watching.

WILDFLOWER TRAIL (0.65 MILES)

Cross Darby Creek, pass an area where we have planted a number of trees (in protective green tubes), and arrive at a beautiful meadow full of native wildflowers. In the summer, this meadow is full of blooms that attract a variety of pollinators: insects, bees and a wealth of butterfly species.

DARBY CREEK LOOP (1.2 MILES)

Journey through woodlands and meadows on a loop paralleling both banks of Darby Creek. Two bridges offer safe passage over the Creek. Here, the trail follows the remnant mill race that powered a paper mill just south of the preserve.

Map Key

-  Waterloo Mills Preserve boundary
-  Streams
-  Woodlands
-  Meadows

